2 DIE IN FRESNO WRECK

Motorist Held As Train Hits Auto On Tracks

Engine And 6 Coaches Leave Rails; Four Are Injured

SELMA (U.P.)—The engine and two baggage cars of the Southern Pacific's crack passenger train the "Owl" overturned here today killing the engineer and fireman and injuring three others after crashing into a stalled automobile.

Robert E. Brown, Fresno, 53, fireman, was kiled instantly. His body was pinned by the boilers of the locomotive and burned beyond recognition.

The engineer, M. J. Mills, Fresno, was extricated from the telscoped cab but died shortly after being taken to Selma Sanitarium.

The baggageman, W. A. Smith, San Francisco, and Miss Mosela Hannah, passenger, were slightly injured. Frank Bradford, CCC worker, Los Angeles, riding the beams, also received minor injuries.

Southern Pacific Company also listed Mrs. W. H. Embler, Yountville, a passenger, as among the injured. She was shaken up. Other passengers were shaken or slighty bruised.

F. K. Ritchie, 42, Porterville, manager of the Sunflower Citrus Association, driver of the stalled automobile was booked at the Fresno County jail on a charge of negligent homicide.

The train, southbound only a few minutes out of Fresno, where the new crew of Mills and Brown took it over, crashed into and completely demolished Ritchie's car.

It is believed that when the engineer applied the air brakes, coupled with the impact of the crash, the locomotive jumped the tracks and plowed into the ground, landing on its side.

The two baggage cars were completey wrecked. Mail and express was scattered around the area.

Six coaches were derailed. All traffic was halted. Six hundred feet of main line track was torn up by the careening locomotive.

Debris from the crash was scattered over a radius of 100 yards. A section tool house was completely wrecked when one of the coaches landed against the building.

Ritchie told police that he and his wife were in the car and as they started over the crossing, in the center of the town, the gears failed to mesh.

They started to push the stalled machine off the tracks but they abandoned the car and ran as the speeding locomotive approached.

Mrs. Ritchie was released after questioning. Both escaped injury.

The engine, according to eye witnesses, plunged off the track after hitting the stalled automobile. Its nose dug up a furrow of earth for nearly 50 yards.

Boilers exploded shortly after the crash and sent scalding steam over the pinioned Brown and Mills. The later's body was three quarters burnt, attaches at the Sanitarium said.

Passengers came streaming out as soon as the careening coaches settled. Three sleepers on the rear of the train remained on the tracks.

Southern Pacific workers constructed a shoo-fly or temporary track around the wreck in order to restore normal service on the line.

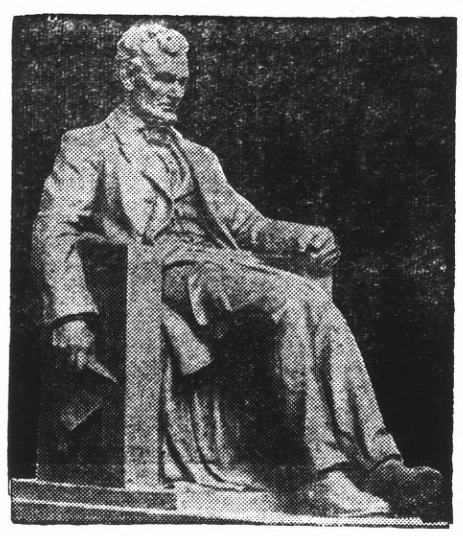

The northbound Owl and Northbound West Coast Limited were rerouted through Exeter and the wrecked train, returning to Fresno, also went south by the Exeter route.

Abraham Lincoln

1809 1865

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (U.P.)—Patriotic and political organizations paid tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln today in pilgrimages to his home, his tomb, and the village where he spent his boyhood.

Springfied, rich in Lincoln lore, paused in its routine business and state affairs to become the hub of celebrations in observance of the 128th anniversary of the "Great Emancipator."

Lincoln came to Sangamon County 100 years ago to begin the career which led to the Presidency and a niche among American immortals. He was buried here.

In the ranks of those who paid tribute were Harry W. Colmery, National American Legion Commander; Mrs. Oscar W. Hahn, Legion Auxiliary Commander; former Secretary of Commerce Charles Nagel; Governor G. H. Earle of Pennsylvania; and Dr. M. S. Rice, prominent Detroit minister.

Members of the Grand Army of the Republic, the American Legion and the woman's Relief Corps paraded together to Lincoln's tomb. Young Republicans held their annual pilgrimage.

Governor Henry Horner of Illinois led a procession from Lincoln's Springfield home, where he started his political career, to New Salem, where Lincoln clerked in a country store.

FLOOD HAZARD IS CONTROLLED BY ENGINEERS

NEW ORLEANS (U.P.)—U. S. army engineers indicated early today they had plugged five large sandboils which inundated 18 square blocks of "down stream" New Orleans.

Giant gutter pumps, used to drain low-lying New Orleans, spurted the yellow river water out into Lake Ponchartrain.

The inundated section was 14 blocks below the business district, in a region of shacks and warehouses. The water quickly receded when the pumps were put into action and most of it had been removed early in the morning Some water remained in low places

The Mississippi River stood at 17.8 feet. Flood stage here is 17 feet, but the top of the levee is about 22 feet.

Kansas Governor Will Address G. O. P. At Dinner

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Former Governor Alfred M. Landon will "have something to say" about President Roosevelt's Supreme Court proposals when he speaks at the National Republican Club's Lincoln Day dinner tonight.

Landon, speaking at a small luncheon at the National Republican Club, said the Republican party should not content itself with "carping criticism" of the opposition but should remember that it represented "40 per cent" of the people and "keep a watchful eye on expenditures and demand a strict accounting."

Landon's address will be broadcast over the blue network of the National Broadcasting Company. The broadcast will start at 10:01 p. m. (Eastern time) or as soon thereafter as the length of preceding speeches permits.

Food Shortage Boosts Prices

10 Per Cent Increase In Past Year To Consumers

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—The nation's supply of three principal foods—meat, bread and potaoes—is the lowest in many years, the Department of Agriculture reported today.

The department emphasized there is no danger of famine, but said prices to consumers have increased considerably and may go higher. Food costs have increased about 10 per cent in the past year.

The department said there are 23 per cent fewer cattle and four per cent fewer lambs on feed than a year ago.

Despite one of the shortest corn crops in 50 years, there was a six per cent increase in the fall pig crop, the department said. The slaughter of hogs last fall was higher, but prices may average higher this summer, the survey showed.

The supply of feed grains is the smallest in 42 years, excepting 1934, but milk production is two per cent above a year ago, although the number of milk cows is two or three per cent lower. Egg production is about 20 per cent above a year ago.

The drought last year cut wheat supplies to the lowest point since 1926. The world supply of wheat also was the lowest in 10 years. Wheat on farms on January 1 was 129,000,000 bushels, compared with 240,000,000 bushels a year ago and the five-year, 1928-32 average of 418,000,000 bushels.

Potatoes have shown the greatest increase in prices, being about double that of a year ago.

Man Refuses To Seek Help For Sickness

F. G. Loring Reported As Former Writer In Magazines

Coroner A. J. Orelli Friday afternoon was seeking to learn more concerning a man identified as F. G. Loring, who preferred to remain in his cabin at Latrobe rather than come to Placerville to seek treatment for influenza.

He died Friday morning.

Loring, aged about 60, is reported to have become despondent as a result of reverses during the depression which are said to have wiped out sizeable resources which he gained while mining in the Jamestown vicinity.

Before that Loring is said to have been a successful magazine writer.

"I have a daughter in Maine. She's coming to visit me but I won't be here," Loring is said to have told acquaintances.

He was discouraged and didn't want his daughter to know of the reverses he had suffered in the depression.

Beyond that, nothing is known of Mr. Loring except that he had been in California about 12 years and had two friends in Hollywood who signed their letters and post cards to him as "Lila and Bob." They have been idenitfied as Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Markele of 1648 North Kingsley Drive, Hollywood.

Coroner Orelli is endeavoring to communicate with them.

McADOO'S LAW PARTNER MAY GET U. S. POST

LOS ANGELES (U.P.)—Local political circles were stirred today reports that Senator William Gibbs McAdoo's law partner is agitating for the U. S. Attorney's job here when the term of Peirson M. Hall expires, April 15.

Col. William H. Neblett and the incumbent neither confirmed nor denied that they are candidates for the same post.

"The decision in this matter is entirely up to Senator McAdoo," Neblett said. "I have no comment to make."

Hall, outwardly at least, was unperturbed by the report.

Mrs. Albert Rupley was a Friday visitor from above Smith Flat.

That Morning After Feeling

Abraham Lincoln Did It

Abraham Lincoln was born one hundred twenty-eight years ago today.

His parents lived in a little one-room cabin near Hodgensville, Kentucky, and it was in this home that the baby arrived.

Lincoln's parents were of very limited means. The boy didn't have the advantage of a common school. No one would have guessed, when Lincoln was a boy, that he someday might be President.

Anyone who would have ventured such a suggestion might have been put down by the community as being "a little teched in the haid."

But Lincoln rose to the Presidency.

We revere his memory and honor his name, not only today but throughout the year, as an example of the equality and opportunity which is afforded all of us in America.

Who, today, would venture to predict the heighths to which one of our neighbors might rise. Though he be of small means and his burden great, someday he may be President.

Lincoln did it.

SPREAD OF FLU THROUGH EUROPE HITS THOUSANDS

PARIS (U.P.)—The weekly League of Nations epidemic bulletins reveal the spread of a dread influenza attack in most countries of Europe. Already several thousand persons have succumbed and the epidemic threatens to spread and increase in intensity.

The epidemic began, a survey reveals, in Germany. In the 57 cities of more than 100,000 inhabitants, 512 deaths due to flu were registered in one week.

In England the epidemic spread more swiftly and was more deadly. On January 2, the number of deaths had jumped from 97 of the week before to 325, counting the population of only 122 large cities. Rising rapidly, the flu epidemic claimed 768 victims the week ending January 9 and 836 for the week of January 16.

Denmark reported that registered cases of flu have fallen but the death rate continues to rise, passing from 12.4 per thousand to 18.9. Holland and Sweden reported a rising number of confined cases, but the death rate has been held low. Republican Spain, ravaged by war and thus expected to be an easy mark for epidemic diseases, registered 4,070 cases of flu in the month ending December 19, with only 27 deaths.

Italy and Poland both reported growing numbers of cases, although statistics of sickness and death were unavailable. Poland particularly faces a grave situation.

France and Switzerland showed the lowest number of cases to date. If the winter season, just reaching its climax in Europe, takes a change for the worse, a real international epidemic is feared.

NAMES ON BIRCH

TIFFIN, O. (U.P.)—F. E. M. Baldwin received recently from Peter A. Elliot, a 91-year-old Civil War veteran, a piece of birch bark on which his sister, brother and two cousins had inscribed their names 70 years ago.

RED-TAPE ENDS TRAPPER'S HOPE OF MERCY WORK

FORT ERIE, Ont. (U.P.)— George Hughes, veteran Canadian trapper and hunting camp owner of Timagami, Ontario, made a 600-mile mercy trip in vain.

Hughes read of the Ohio and Mississippi Valley floods, and coming from a country where the knowledge of navigation in dangerous waters is a necessity, believed he would be of some help to the flood-stricken folk.

Starting from his camp on Martin's Lake, with two of his best guides and 22-foot boats powered with heavy duty motors, the trapper set out for the Ohio River Valley.

After successfully negotiating more than 600 miles of icy roads with an automobile and two large trailers, he and his party arrived at the Peace Bridge here, only to be halted by federal officials.

Immediately Hughes began urging friends to assist him in gaining entrance to the United States. Finally "much disguster" with everything in general, he started the long trek homeward.

It was not until some hours later that federal officials decided to waive regulations and permit him to enter the United States. But Hughes had started his long trip back.

Here's How Your Uncle Sam Makes His Hard Millions

MUSCLE AND BRAINS NEEDED AS UNCLE SAM MAKES MONEY

"Hard money" does not always mean that unless you're endowed with special aptitude, it's hard to get. Hard money also refers to the kind that jingles.

Americans use a vast amount of hard money each year and there is, of course, an excellent market for it. It seems to be one of the few commodities in which the supply never quite equals the demand. However, that may be, there is only one source from which it flows. That is from Uncle Sam's mints and no one else is allowed to manufacture it legally. To be caught attempting to duplicate privately any of the metal coins authorized by the United States government is to spend a term in one of the federal penitentiaries.

Money generally suggests wealth, luxury and ease. But minting of the metal is pretty much of a job at manual labor, comparable to working iron, steel or any of the lesser valuable metals. Uncle Sam has four of these foundaries and machine shops, or mints as they are called, in the United States. They are located at Philadelphia, Denver, New Orleans and San Francisco. There are assay offices at New York and Seattle, where the specific weight and value of precious metals are determined.

Gold, silver, nickel—whatever the metal to be used, is dumped into a furnace and melted into ingots. Most of the ingots are alloys. Penny ingots, for example, contain 95 per cent of copper and five per cent of nickel, the nickel giving the coins a quality of hardness.

Ingots go through a heavy rolling machine, under hundreds of tons pressure, from which they emerge in lengthened and flattened form. Sometimes they endure this rolling process eleven times. These bars are then exactly the right thickness for whatever coins are to be cut from them.

Cutting machines turn the bars into discs at the rate of 300 a minute. There is a definite weight for each coin turned out and, even in the case of pennies, every eleventh disc is weighed by hand, on balances so fine that they record a pencil mark on a piece of paper.

From the weighing room the discs go to be "milled." This process turns the raised rim on each of them. Then comes the stamping process in which "heads" and "tails" are placed on each disc simultaneously, giving the figures and letters indicating the denomination.

Now the coins drop on an endless belt beside which sharp-eyed inspectors sit, who toss out occasional defective ones as the stream passes by.

Last comes the automatic counter, a machine which dops a thousand coins into a money sack, stops, and waits for another sack to be placed before resuming. The little white sacks are distributed to banks according to demand. Counting machinues are adjustable to various sizes and thicknesses of coins.

Strangely, at first thought, employes in the mints are never searched for possible theft of metal or coins. There is a better way to check. Precious metals are carefully weighed, when they are received at a mint, on scales that record minutes fractions of an ounce. The metal is weighed again in the refining room, again when the precious bars go into storage or into machines. Weights are checked and re-checked. Dross refined out of the metal is weighed. Everything must total. If it fails to do so, officials can tell instantly where the variance occurred. They can show evidence of theft that is indisputable.

In 1935 the United States minted 560,760,047 coins with a value of $38,580,924. The metals included silver, copper, nickel, tin and zinc. There hasn't been any gold minted since 1933.

LOTUS

The past two weeks of storm has done very much damage to the flume of the ranch company's ditch. A large slide containing boulders came down from some distance above the flume and smashed most of it all down for a distance of 150 feet. This flume was put innew last Spring by our ditch agent, George Pountain, assisted by others, at a big expense to the company and now the work is all to be done over. Mr. Pountain took a walk up the ditch last week to see how everything was and discovered everything all down as stated. This means more hard work for Mr. Pountain and more money from the company's pocket.

After two weeks of layoff on account of the snowy and rainy weather, Ray Rosenberger passed through our streets on Wednesday morning at the wheel of the high school bus. Ray has sowewhat been under the weather the past week, having an attack of the flu, but is back to himself again and able to keep up the bus work.

Owing to high water mining on the Uniontown Bar has suspended operations for a time. Lester Newton still keeps the big shovel moving the top dirt.

Bill Fredericks, Miss Lillian Bassi and boy friend came up from Sacramento Saturday evening and all took in the Firemen's dance in Placerville. After the dance they came over to Lotus and visited at the home of Dan Bassi.

The weather has been rough for sometime and has somewhat delayed the whist card parties.

Byron Bacchi and wife and Charles Carlston spent Monday in Auburn attending to business matters and taking in the sights of the town.

Miss Eleanor Wagner come up from Petaluma on Saturday to visit for a few days with her aunt, Mrs. Potter, and her two cousins, Misses Mildred and Wilma Potter.

Quincy Veerkamp, of Webber Creek district, spent the week-end visiting with his sister, Mrs. Dorothy O'Brien, of here.

Tom Clifton, of Placerville, and George Metcalf, of Coloma, who are attending the School of Forestry at Davis, came up and spent the week-end with the respective parents, at Placerville and Coloma.

Charles Thompson, of Marysville, was in our town the past week visiting at the Lawyer home.

Mr. J. W. Caswell, from Placerville, who represents the State Board of Equalization, was a caller in our town the past week looking over the liquor situation in behalf of the board. Mr. Caswell visited at Coloma and other places on his trip here.

Miss Ethel Lawyer and boy friend visited at the J. A. Hansen home Sunday afternoon.

Among those from here who took advantage of the weather Monday and went to Placerville were Mrs. Irma Lawyer and daughter, Ethel; Mrs. Violet Reaside and sister-in-law, Miss Nellie Reaside, and Mrs. Dell Smith who took her brother, Herbert Wagner, over to see the doctor. Herbert was kicked by one of his cows some time ago and suffered a broken leg and wanted the doctor to check up on how he is getting along.

A. H. Peterson had the misfortune to lose his white horse in Granite Creek during the heavy rains of last week. The animal was crossing the creek when the high water carried it down and it was unable to get on its feet and so drowned.

Warren Barney and sons, of Folsom, were callers at the Henry Bacchi home on Sunday.

Mrs. Will Miller and daughter, Lois, of Granite Hill, and Mrs. Ella Norris, of Coloma, visited at the Reaside home the past week.

George Luneman, prominent stockman of the Webber Creek district, spent Sunday visiting with friends at Folsom.

Clarence Tidd, of Springvale, has recently purchased a Ford coupe and was seen with it on our streets Sunday, taking his best girl for a ride in his new car.

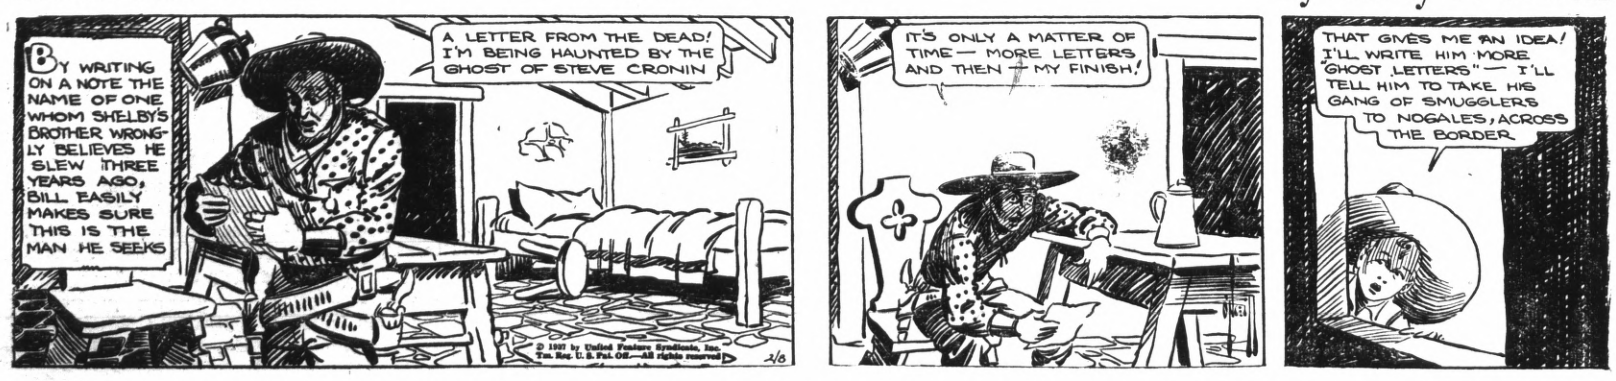

SHERIFF TOO BOLD

ATWOOD, Kan. (U.P.)—Sheriff David Birkinbine locked $400 in county funds in his desk and went across the street. When he returned a few minutes later the desk was broken open and the money gone.

Believing In Ghosts

VOLCANOVILLE NOTES

No news has been sent in recently on account of the illness of the writer.

All of the Frazier family have recently been down with the flu.

Owing to the storms the roads have been closed for some time but we hope to have them opened soon. It is bad here because of so much illness. There was nearly six feet of snow on the level here after settling and it seems that a total depth of eight feet must have fallen. It was the worst storm we have seen. Everywhere one looks there are fallen trees, broken fences. As far as we know the only buildings to fall were at the Paymaster Mine where, we understand, the bunkhouse and mill went down.

Elmer Ogle was ill and unable to carry the mail, getting Lowell Elliot as carrier. He was accompanied by Tom French. No one hearing from them after they had set out, Ogle and J. French started out the next day, in the blizzard. The mail was four days late here but we considered ourselves lucky it got through at all.

Art Smith and Lowell Elliot are ill with the flu at their home on Jackie's Hill.

We understand Tom French is also ill.

There are 25 people here and most of them ill or low on food. Dry wood is a serious proposition.

There is a new pupil at the Negro Hill school, making 13 pupils now.

Joe Carmichael of Folsom, was a caller on the hill, Saturday.

Mrs. George Darrington is getting along nicely at Sutter hospital in Sacramento.

There will be a turkey shoot at the Darrington ranch on Sunday, February 21.

PARADE OF SPORTS

By HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Writer)

By HENRY SUPER, pinch hitting for Henry McLemore.

NEW YORK (UP)—Dust off your piano Mr. Ellington—and make your melody a little hotter Mr. Calloway. For Jesse (I got all kinds of rhythm) Owens is on your trail.

The triple Olympic champion, who has cashed in $65,000 in one way or another since turning professional, now is in training for a musical tour of the nation "which'll murder 'em."

Jesse said so himself as he worked out with a 12-piece negro band in a dingy rehearsal hall hard by the Cotton Club. He still has almost two weeks of conditioning left before he makes his bow in the flat and sharp class at Harrisburg, Pa.

"And by that time I should be able to slay 'em with my 'Pennies from Heaven,'" Mr. Owens predicted.

While one Danny Logan worked on the band, Owens, in a natty blue suit and white polo shirt, sat on the sidelines and discussed his latest venture. It was a scattered conversation for Jesse continuously leaped up and ripped off choruses or waver the baton.

Since when was Jesse, the world's fastest human, a musician?

"Oh, I'll do alright," he smiled. "I used to play a little clarinet when I was in school and I did some singing." He fingered a copy of 'Pennies from Heaven.' "Wanna hear me?"

Jesse leaped across the studio, grabbed the microphone and started: "Every time it rains, it rains pennies . . . ." and, believe it or not, it sounded pretty good. Then he led the band. Although the boys could have done just as well without Jesse—or any one else for that matter—up there waving the stick, it looked impressive. Particularly his rhythmic sway which, I was told, some of our better baton-beaters can't execute to perfection.

Did Jesse regret turning professional?

"No sir, I've made something like $65,000 since the Olympics. I got a $40,000 annuity. I bought my mother a home and my wife out in Cleveland now is fixing one up for us.

"Yes, I want to go back and finish up school. But that won't be for some time because the Missus is expecting an addition to the family in about six or seven months.

"I'm not through with the track either. I got some exhibition races planned for this summer."

How long was Jesse going to keep up this varied career?

"Well," he answered frankly, "I figure I'll keep messing around long as there's dough to be picked up. This band will pay plenty. After that they got a part for me in a regular full length picture at Hollywood.

"Once there's no more dough to be made, then I'm going back to school and get my A. B. degree. After that, I hope to be a physical education instructor or a track and field coach.

"Meanwhile," and Jesse strolled toward the mike again:

"Pennies from Heaven . . . ."

WOMAN SOUGHT BY POLICE IN KIDNAP-MURDER

SEATTLE (UP)—Detectives questioned a man and wife and held a checkered cap today as investigation of kidnaping and murder of Charles Mattson, 10-year-old Tacoma school boy, went on relentlessly nearly two months after the crime.

The cap was found in a hideaway in the underworld where it had been discarded, officers said.

The couple, arrested downtown, was questioned several hours as to their whereabouts December 2, night of the kidnaping. Chief William Cole of the state patrol sought a woman believed to have been a companion of "Tim" Donovan, alias James G. McDonald and H. A. Post, under arrest since Wednesday.

"Tim" was the signature of the $28,000 ransom note left at the Mattson home.

The cap, which police said was similar to the one described as having been worn by the kidnaper, fitted Donovan, patrolmen said.

BERKELEY SCIENTIST FINDS MAN-MADE RADIUM SUCCESS

By HENRY WOOD
United Press Staff Correspondent

BERKELEY (UP)—As a result of the first successful use on human beings of synthetic radium produced by the famous cyclotron at the University of California, a new cyclotron, three times as large as the present one, and which will make it the largest in the world, is to be constructed immediately, university authorities have announced.

The cyclotron, which was the invention of Dr. E. O. Lawrence and his staff at the university, is a powerful machine, the present one weighing 85 tons. It bombards atoms and breaks them into smaller elements.

A few of the achievements to date of the cyclotron have been production of synthetic radium which is now known as radio sodium, and the changing of platinum into gold.

The startling achievements accomplished by the giant machine attracted such attention that scientists from the leading universities of the world have come here to study it. In addition, about a dozen other cyclotrons have been constructed in the universities of the United States and elsewhere.

The discovery, however, that radio active salts can be produced in the machine and the possibilities which might develop from a medical standpoint by their use instead of regular radium, led to the decision to construct a new cyclotron that will weigh 250 tons and which will be used largely in developing is possible use as a means of therapy.

The first of these was made on mice afflicted with a cancerous-like growth and which had been used in the past in X-ray and other experiments in an effort to find a successful treatment for cancer.

The experiments showed that the neutron rays were four times as effective as the X-ray. Experiments being carried on along this line are to demonstrate what effect the application of the rays may have on healthy tissue. The hopes of the cyclotron staff are that the neutron ray may be found a more effective treatment for cancer without the attendant evil effects when radium is used.

RECORD FLOOD OF VALENTINES DUE THIS YEAR

By HOMER JENKS
United Press Staff Correspondent

WORCESTER, Mass. —More Americans are expected to ask their sweethearts to "Be My Valentine" this year than in any year since the depression.

From two six-Story buildings in this city, where in 1849 the nation's first valentine was made, went forth some 45,000,000 valentines during the past few months, an increase of 12 per cent over the corresponding period a year ago.

These factories house the George C. Whitney Company, world's largest valentine manufacturers. Head of the 71-year-old firm is baldheaded Warren Whitney, jovial, middle-aged Worcester civic leader and son of the founder.

A steady increasing business is Whitney's answer to the cynics' cry that romance and sentiment are dead. From 5,000 valentines in 1866, when the Whitney Company made its debut, the yeary output swelled to 55,0000,000 in 1928, dropped to 30,000,000 in 1933 and then began to rise again.

French Mission Will Visit U. S. At Easter

PARIS (UP)—A national French mission, composed of delegates from the most distinguished French organizations, will visit the United States at Easter time and join in celebrations at New Orleans, Houston, Mobile and Chicago in memory of La Salle, Pere Marquette, and Le Moyne d'Iberville, early French explorers and colonizers in America.

The celebrations will take place almost simultaneously, marking the 250th anniversary of the death of La Salle, Mississippi explorer; the third centenary of the birth of Pere Marquette, and the anniversary of the founding of Mobile by d'Iberville. The delegation also will visit other historic spots in the South where Frenchmen played an important part in the early history of the colonial period and the opening years of the United States.

20-YEAR HUNT ENDS AS BIRD IS CAPTURED

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—After 20 years of persisten jungle exploration, Melbourne A. Carriker, associate curator of the Academy of Natural Sciences here, returned with a rare, turkey-like Giant Tinamou bird.

Carriker started his latest South American hunt for the big, buff-colored bird 10 months ago, fought his way through jungle undergrowth and clambered an Andes mountain peak with a fractured ankle to bag seven at once.

The curato's only regret is that after his battle against starvation when food supplies ran low, desertion of three of his four Bolivian guides and six weeks of constant struggle, he and his remaining guide had to eat two or the rare fowls.

Carriker brought back with him some 2,500 rare birds, many of which, he said, were unknown to science. His greatest prize, next to the coveted Tinamou, was a Bolivian humming bird, measuring three-quarters of an inch in lnegth.

HAWAII OFFERS "MALE GUIDES;" $2.50 PER HOUR

HONOLULU (UP)—The white menace of competition has arisen in the heretofore strictly Hawaiian business of entertaining women visitors from abroad.

It has arisen in the form of a strike-born enterprise called Male Guide Service, and while its sponsors have had a little success cutting into the native beach boys' swimming or surfing fees, they are making headway along other lines.

Pig hunting, for instance. A Parisian gigolo might raise an eyebrow and twirl his waxed mustache in dismay if asked to lead an American debutante on a wild boar chase, but the local talent takes such a request in stride and send an expert pig-sticker.

Requests for pig hunters, however, are limited and for the most part the guides are employed in such ordinary tasks as squiring lonely women to movies, dinners, dances, native feasts and similar affaairs. For $2.50 an hour and expenses.
